

RECEIVER CIRCUIT AND A METHOD FOR ITS OPERATION

Karl Schrodinger

ABSTRACT

A receiver circuit having at least one amplifier device for amplification of a data signal which is applied to the input side of the receiver circuit, and having a control device which measures the data rate of the data signal and sets the bandwidth of the amplifier device such that the bandwidth of the amplifier device corresponds to the data rate of the data signal.